

Marriage Under Difficulties

The Pond Creek (Okla.) Visited tells a story of a young man who secured a marriage license there to wed a girl who lived just across the State line in Kansas. Just before the ceremony he learned that the girl was already married. He then fled to the Oklahoma side of the road to have the ceremony performed there. Then the minister, in an effort to feel some doubt as to whether he had a right to perform a marriage ceremony outside of his own State, the matter was finally settled by having the marriage in the middle of the road with the minister across the line on the Kansas side and the bride and bridegroom on the Oklahoma side. —Kansas City Journal.

Before and After Xmas!

Before and after Christmas you will find our store headquarters for all that is good in Stationery. Before Christmas, when it is now, it will pay you well to see the pretty things we have for gifts. There is everything you would expect to find in a Stationery Store and more. It would take too long to tell of their beauty and usefulness. So, just come in and look around for yourself. There will be nothing about our prices to scare you.

Nothing Better Than "Page's Perfected Poultry Food."

D. J. Lambert of Apponaug, E. L. the maker of the famous "Death to Lice" remedies and who is all over the country known as a poultry expert, says there is nothing better than "Page's Perfected Poultry Food." Here are his exact words: "Rations should vary with the different seasons. Some kind of animal food is necessary at all times, and I have found nothing better than Page's Perfected Poultry Food."

Any one sending his address on a postal card to C. S. Page, Hyde Park, Vt., and mentioning this paper, will receive by mail, free, postpaid, a sample package of "Page's Perfected Poultry Food."

Why the Stove Was Elevated.

During the college days of ex-Mayor Reason of Lynn he had two of the professors of the college as guests at a hunting camp in the Maine woods. When they entered the camp their attention was attracted to the unusual position of the stove, which was set on posts about four feet high.

One of the professors began to comment upon the knowledge of woodmen gained by observation. "Now," said he, "this man has discovered that the heat radiating from the stove strikes the roof and the circulation is so quickened that the camp is warmed in much less time than would be required if the stove was in its regular place on the floor."

The other professor was of the opinion that the stove was elevated to be above the windows in order that cool and pure air could be had at night.

Mr. Reason, being more practical, contended that the stove was elevated to order that a good supply of green wood could be placed beneath it to dry.

After considerable argument each man placed a dollar bill upon the table and it was agreed that the one whose opinion was nearest the guide's reason for elevating the stove should take the pool. The guide was called and asked why the stove was placed in such an unusual position.

"Well," said he, "when I brought the stove up here I noticed that the stovepipe overboard, and had to set the stove up there so as to have the pipe reach through the roof."

He got the money. —Boston Herald.

Tired by a Deer.

Doubtless tired of being pursued by enthusiastic hunters a Black Hills deer turned pursuer and as a result E. X. Haines, residing near the little town of Union, in the northern foothills of the Black Hills, had a thrilling adventure.

He had not been hunting deer but was quietly walking up the road to get his mail when he sighted the animal in the highway before him. The deer was coming toward him. It was some distance down hill and Haines supposed it would soon sight him and take to flight as is usually the case. Instead of turning, the big buck, when it sighted him, made straight for Haines and it became a race for life. Haines was unarmed and as he is a heavy man the prospects were that he could not outrun the deer. He speedily came to this conclusion and reaching a pile of rocks took refuge behind them.

But the deer was not to be baffled and after dodging the apparently man-sized animal for a few minutes, during which it showed no signs of relenting, Haines watched his chance and again took to his heels. Heading for a nearby tree which seemed to be exactly the right place for the emergency, Haines, who was nearly exhausted from his strenuous efforts to escape the animal, managed by sheer force of will to scramble up the tree out of reach. After about fifteen minutes' vigil at the foot of the tree the deer evidently wearied of the game and departed. —St. Paul Pioneer Press.

WORTH A THOUGHT.

This Statement Will Interest Scores of Barre Readers.

The facts given below are worth a perusal by all who are anxious about their physical condition or are similarly situated to this resident of Orange. It is a local occurrence and can be thoroughly investigated.

Mrs. A. M. Andrews (A. M. Andrews, farmer), residence, Orange, says: "Some two years ago I first noticed pain in my back and hips and as the weeks and months went by it became more severe and was of much longer duration. Finally too frequent action of the kidney sections was added to the backache, and as they were often distressing and annoying I had to give up my usual work. I was unable to do the slightest housework with any degree of pleasure. If I was on my feet for any length of time I was taken with dizziness and blurring before my eyes and I often became so weak and nervous that I almost fell. A lady friend in Barre recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to me and my husband went to E. A. Drown's for the first box. I cannot positively state that the remedy has actually rid me of the cause of the backache and other complications due to kidney complaint, but I must conscientiously say that from the benefit received I have the greatest confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills and believe that what is said about them is not misrepresentation."

Undigested Food

When any portion of food remains in the stomach and refuses to digest, it causes the torments of indigestion. This undigested food rapidly ferments, irritating the sensitive coating of the stomach, while other parts of the body, particularly the head, suffer in consequence.

So long as this undigested food remains in the stomach, the discomfort continues. A few doses of stop all fermentation, sweeten the contents of the stomach and give natural assistance that relieves the stomach of its burden. The use of Beecham's Pills gradually strengthens the stomach nerves and soon restores them to a normal, healthy condition.

Beecham's Pills positively cure all stomach troubles, while their beneficial effects on the liver and kidneys greatly improve the general health.

Beecham's Pills have been used and recommended by the general public for over fifty years.

W. J. Story, assistant cashier of the Merchants' & Farmers' Bank, Courtland, Va., says: "Farm land in this county, which lies in the peanut belt of Virginia, sells readily for more than twice as much as it brought eight or ten years ago, and the farmers generally are in much better shape than they have been since the war. The scarcity of labor is a source of much trouble to both farm and mill men. Quite a number of farmers are having their peanuts pulled by machinery, while the hand-picked nuts sell much more readily at about one-half cent per pound more." —Manufacturers' Record.

The skull and tusks and the bones of one of the forelegs of a mammoth were brought to this city yesterday by J. M. Taverind, a carpenter on the United States revenue cutter Bear. These fossilized remains were dug out of the sand in the bed of one of the rivers on Kotzebue sound, Alaska. They were found by native Eskimos last July and were taken to the Bear to be traded. Taverind, recognizing the value they would have in this country, at once purchased them. The skull is nearly three feet through and weighs nearly 150 pounds. Both tusks have been broken or have disintegrated, but even now one of them is seven feet two inches long, while the other is four feet two inches. When the animal was alive they must have measured about nine feet in length. —Detroit Free Press.

The power of running water to move large blocks of stone is well illustrated at the Assuan dam across the Nile. A large mass of rock has been dislodged from the bed of the river by the powerful current flowing from the barrier, and thrown backward against the masonry. This boulder is 17 feet long by 12 feet broad, and 7 feet in thickness. It is estimated to weigh sixty tons. Geologists, who are perhaps too often apt to assume that any such large block separated from its parent mass must have been moved by ice, should take special notice of this. It was estimated by Mr. W. Hopkins, of Cambridge, that while a current of ten miles an hour might move a spherical mass of stone five tons in weight, a current of twenty miles an hour would move a block sixty-four times as heavy; that is to say, of 320 tons weight. —London Globe.

Long Island in Danger.

The fisherman may have to get back to garden worms and grasshoppers, or use artificial bait, according to Mr. George L. Graham, of New York, who was talking about fishermen and fishing in the Joyce cafe.

"In the last few years," he said, "there has developed a perfect passion among fishermen for Long Island blood worms, especially for bass and rock fishing; and thousands of worms are shipped to Maryland fishing points every week, and millions are used altogether. There seems to be no place to get this particular worm except in the sands of Long Island. The worm is a long fellow, running to as great length as a foot, with a double row of creepers along the under side of his body. He smells like clam and is full of blood. He is very tempting for rock, and makes perhaps the best bait known, although he costs money—$2 per hundred. The great demand for the blood worm has started an industry which threatens Long Island—that of digging for the worms. Hundreds of diggers make their living in this one pursuit, which is very nice for them but not so pleasant for the island for in their eagerness to get at choice deposits of bait they dig away back under the water line, with the result that at many points the shore is threatened with serious cave-ins. Now there are some restrictions—I don't know just what they are—designed to protect Long Island from the diggers."

"But, speaking of bait I have never seen a better bait for bass, rock, trout or other game fish than the dobbin. Ever see one? He's a short fat grub, with a hardish crust and pinners, armed with many feet, which wiggle incessantly when you hook him. His head is hard enough to hold firm on the hook, and he makes so much disturbance in the water that any game fish will go for him directly. He has another advantage, in his tenacity of life. He lives for a long time on the hook and under the water, and is active every minute, up to the strike." —Baltimore News.

Well, Now!

What a lovely fall this! The focal world is outdoing itself; every yard is beauty's temple and beauty waves in the branches of every tree. The fall roses are more numerous than ever before, and they burst upon each new corner with new glories. And the chrysanthemums—fall's chosen angel, that genius of herbaceous and shrubby plant, sent by the Orient to turn the melancholy days of the Occident to gladness—spring—how it rears its stately head and touches every hue in beauty's kaleidoscope. In every garden may be seen this fall beauty in its various colors and forms: the single types, the recurved and the incurved—touched with every strong and delicate shade on the florist's palette. These and the roses and asters of the garden the nascent blooms hanging over the walls and the seedling and yellowing leaves of the trees are for the solace of humanity; they have a power to regenerate our natures and turn us from baseness and from wrong—Honey Grove (Texas) Signal.
